HEAD tags

The head tag is an HTML element used to define the head section of an HTML document. The head section contains metadata, which simply means data about data. This means information in the head tag is not displayed on the page but the information is used by browsers and by search engines.

Head tags generally include elements such as the document title, links to stylesheets or scripts, and meta tags that provide information about the document's content and structure.

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html lang="en">

<head>
   <title>Jyoti Nivas College</title>
</head>

<body>
   Student Of JNC.
</body>

</html>
```